

A Defence of the Church of England Against Disestablishment: With an Introductory Letter to the Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone, M. P (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from A Defence of the Church of England Against Disestablishment: With an Introductory Letter to the Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone, M. P My Dear Mr. Gladstone, To whatever extent you may retain or may have relinquished your early views of the proper relations between Church and State, the subject (I am persuaded) is one to which you are not and cannot be indifferent. If your later public utterances concerning it have been (as must be confessed) uncertain and enigmatical, this may be due to the exigencies of a political position to which it would be hard to find a parallel in the history of this, or perhaps of any other country. Not even such gifts as yours can enable a Statesman to acquire and maintain boundless popularity, and almost dictatorial ascendancy over multitudes of persons of very various political aims, without an abdication of the functions of leadership on some important points, in order, perhaps, to enhance them on others. In your Address of September 1885 to the Electors of Midlothian, the severance of the Church of England from the State was mentioned as a question, as to which the foundations of discussion had already been laid.
