Excerpt: ... A-N ACCOUNT Of the Prefent Stae and Government O F T H E EMPIRE of GERM ANT. In a Letter to Thomas Foley, Efq; SIR, IN a late Converfation you were pleafed to Honour me with, you asked me my Thoughts of the prefent State and Government of the Empire, now Vacant by the Death of the Emperor Jofeph. It was not poffible for me in an Hours Difcourfe, to give you fo full and exact an Account of that Matter, as I could have wiftid-, and therefore to fupply what I had not then an Opportunity of faying, I immediately determined to defire a Friend to Translate into Englilh the following fhort Tract, written about two Years ago upon that Subject. I wifh it may fatisfie your Curiofity, and beg you will, at leaft, vouchfafe it your Acceptance, as a Mark of my Efleem, and of the Delire I have of the Continuance of your Favour. What we now call the Empire, is, in reality, no more than a Commonwealth, whereof the Emperor is the Head-, and the three feveral Colleges, of the Electors, of the Princes or Lords who A 2 hold hold their Fiefs immediately from the Emperor, and of the Imperial Cities, are the Principal Members. For the better Explaining the Nature of the Government of that great and powerful Body, it is requifite to look pretty far back, and to fet forth in few Words how it was Conftituted after the Fall of the Houfe ofCharlemaigne, Founder of the new Western Empire. That Prince, whofe Father had made I. The IVepTMEmpire himfelf King of France, to the Prejudice of FkSSW&S the TM ? Parity of?TM, or, as they and devolves upon the are ufually called, the Merovingians, carHoufe o/Auftria.-ried hisGonquefts very far into Germany,Italy and Spain; was folemnly
