

Communism National and International

Softcover book of 168 pages, indexed. Discusses the development of communism in Eastern European countries leading up to the publication of the book in 1964. With the 22nd Congress in 1961, the author feels that the further development of Communism is out of control both within and without the countries involved, with a growing rise of a nationalism that was expressing itself in varying degrees of independence from the Soviet Union.
